Winners of the monthly selection of Gold Movie Awards

Every month, the Gold Movie Awards, a film festival named after the Greek goddess of victory Nike, awards its statuettes to the best movies entered in the contest; monthly winners have the honor to attend the annual event that will take place in London on January 11, 2018.

Each month dozens of films participate in the competition, and only the best ones (who must get a score of at least 8/10 by the international jury) are awarded with the golden statuette.

This year, within just the first 7 months, over 700 films have already been submitted to the Gold Movie Awards. The main categories of the festival are: best short movies, best feature no budget (under $5000), best video clip, best documentary and best animation. There are also subcategories such as: best director, best photography etc.

The winner of September as "Best of the Month" is: "The way home" directed by Zoe Glickman: a young director born in 2003 (USA); synopsis: "When a virus kills most people on Earth, a young girl must deal with the death of her younger brother and the guilt that comes with it. On her journey of self-discovery, she meets another girl and the two girls form an unlikely friendship. They must both deal with the challenges that come with the end of the world as they know it".

The event, which is to be held in London, will be a celebration for those who will be rewarded as the annual winners, but also a meeting point for the festival participants: directors, producers and actors. Workshops will also be organized for the occasion; the event will take place in the city at the cultural centre "Canada Water Center".

The Gold Movie Awards were born from the union of a production house and industry professionals; they were created by those who have produced films and short films for years, and thus know the value of independent film productions.

The festival is widening its horizons by doing live screenings across Italy and soon in other countries too. Next year, a partnership is likely to be established between the festival and a school of film and special effects (namely the SkyUp Academy) that's based in Italy.

Currently, the festival is in partnership with Genera (the platform that gives independent films the chance to be funded) and Inktip, which is a space for those who want to convert a script into a movie.
